

* creational pattern that allows to create new objects by copying existing ones (cloning) rather than creating new objects from scratch. It is useful when object creation is costly.

- Prototype: an interface that declares a clone method.
- Concrete Prototype: a class that implements the clone() method to return a copy of itself.
- Client: creates new objects by cloning a prototype.